CHECKLIST REMOTE ONBOARDING

Presented by Carrera Lee Enterprises, Inc.

Remote work has become an expanded practice that's likely to continue even post-coronavirus. During these times, it's no longer just seasoned employees working from home—it's also new hires, and employers are being challenged with the task of onboarding increasingly more remote employees than ever before. This includes planning an effective technology experience, acclimating remote hires to their new roles and sharing the necessary knowledge for a new employee to succeed within your remote environment. This checklist outlines steps for employers to consider as they plan a remote onboarding process.

Before the Employee's First Day
Confirm the employee's start date.
Confirm the start time and any other expectations for the employee's first day.
Send the new employee a request to complete new-hire paperwork, including Form I-9, tax forms, a direct deposit form and emergency contact information.
Plan the employee's orientation, initial training and assignments.
Contact the employee with a detailed schedule and itinerary for Week 1.
Plan the employee's workstation and technology.
Communicate technology and workstation expectations of the employee ahead of their start date.
Order equipment and plan for necessary software.
Add the employee to relevant email distribution lists.
Add regularly scheduled meetings to the employee's calendar.
Email the employee's department with relevant information about their new team member—such as his or her start date, role and a brief bio—and copy the new employee, if appropriate.
Select and meet with the new hire's mentor, if applicable.
Set up meetings with critical people for the employee's first few weeks.
Order any necessary training materials.
Order business cards for the new employee, if necessary.
Arrange pertinent training required for the job.

Workstation Environment and Setup
Adequate space within the employee's home for an office
Desk or work area with sufficient space for equipment
Comfortable and ergonomic office chair
Workstation area that complies with ergonomic and safety guidelines
Environment with minimal noise and distractions
Workstation in a location with broadband network able to download and upload at a minimum of 1.5 megabytes per second (Mbps)

Workstation Technology
Desktop or laptop, either provided by the employer or employee
Internal network access given to employee for all necessary job functions
Adequate hard drive capacity and memory on computer to perform necessary job duties
If video calls will be part of the employee's job responsibilities, computer includes a webcam
Arrange for employee phone service and/or phone plan
Headset with microphone
Power cord
Mouse
Mouse pad
Keyboard
Virtual private network (VPN) established for employee's computer
Other technology as required by the roles and responsibilities of their position

First Day
Introduce the employee to the virtual workspace.
Show the employee team sites, employee intranet and necessary tools.
Review the outline of duties and expectations for the first week.
Review hours of work, and explain policies and procedures for overtime, use of vacation, sick time and holidays.
Be available to greet the employee on the first day.
Introduce the employee to others in the workplace and their mentor.
Explain how to get IT support.
Explain how to utilize HR.
Provide information on setting up voicemail and their computer.
Ensure that the employee has a fully functioning workstation.
First Week
Give the employee their initial assignment—something small and doable.
Briefly check in with the employee each day to address any questions or concerns that may arise.
Explain the annual performance review and goal-setting process.
Review the process related to the probationary period, if applicable.
First Three Months
Conduct regularly occurring one-on-one meetings while giving timely, useful feedback.
Meet for an informal three-month performance check-in.
Create written performance goals and professional development goals.
Meet with the employee's mentor to review the initial stages of mentorship and answer questions.
Make sure that the employee is a part of ongoing conference or video calls on a regular basis.	П

Ensure the employee has attended all scheduled training and is signed up for any future training sessions that may be needed.
Provide information about continued learning opportunities, if applicable.
First Six Months
Conduct a six-month performance review.
Review progress on performance goals and professional development goals.
Review the status and performance of the employee's remote workstation and technology.
First Year
Celebrate successes and recognition of the employee's contributions.
Continue providing regular informal feedback, and provide formal feedback during the annual review process.

Use this checklist as a guide when planning the remote onboarding process for new employees joining your organization. For assistance with remote work planning, contact Carrera Lee Enterprises, Inc..

Discuss the employee's professional development goals and identify relevant learning opportunities.

Have a conversation with the employee about his or her experience to date.

Discuss potential goals for the next year.

Survey the employee about their onboarding experience.

